Pediatricians are a trusted resource for children and families and play an important role in promoting relational health, particularly during periods of collective trauma such as the COVID-19 pandemic. As schools navigate these unprecedented times, reopening comes with new challenges and unknowns.

The New Jersey Chapter, American Academy of Pediatrics (NJAAP) Training Institute engages a diverse group of highly skilled experts who are available to provide professional development opportunities to:

- Bridge the gap between research and practice to employ trauma-responsive strategies and help all students thrive
- Integrate culturally responsive approaches to SEL and trauma-responsive schools

The topics listed below can be adapted to meet the needs of schools and school districts.

- Origins of the ACE study
- Landscape of ACEs in New Jersey
- Impacts of ACEs on development
- Healthy social connections
- Social and emotional competencies
- Systemic racism and cultural biases
- Educator burnout and secondary traumatic stress
- Identifying and reporting child abuse and neglect
- Partnering with healthcare professionals, families and community organizations

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS (FAQ)

How will this virtual workshop support the professional development of our school staff?
Our virtual workshops are customizable to your community’s needs and meet the recommended guidelines from The Road Back (NJ School Plan). We are committed to the well-being and safety of schools, children and families!

Who conducts the virtual workshops?
The NJAAP Training Institute Speaker’s Bureau includes board-certified pediatricians, school nurses and other healthcare professionals who are experts in the field of Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs), trauma-informed care and secondary traumatic stress, and are well versed in connecting with community-based resources that support students and families.

Who can participate?
Anyone! Trainings are tailored to your organization, school and school district’s needs and are appropriate for all staff. We offer large group virtual workshops as well as smaller, discussion-based sessions.

How long is the training?
We offer one, two or four (half-day) hour workshops; however, we can work with any requests that are outside of these time intervals.

Do you work with schools and organizations outside of NJ?
Yes, we are currently accepting requests from other states!

Is there a cost?
Yes, the NJAAP Training Institute is a fee-for-service. This fee includes developing and conducting the workshop to suit your specific needs and interests, hosting the workshop on our online platform, sending out invitations to attendees, preparing and distributing an evaluation, and sharing an attendee report and evaluation report with you following the workshop.

For more information on pricing, please call (609) 842-0014 or email training@njaap.org.
